The first eight-oared shell to take the water from either of the Washington rowing organizations this year left the float of the Potomac Boat Club just befoer noon today, with a mixed crew of juniora intermediates, and seniors at the sweeps. The eight signalized the opening of the rowing season by pulling apstream a mile or so above the Three Sisters, and then returning to the

The current, which until yesterday held off the rowing season by preventing the installation of the float in front of the wharf, was still running strong enough to be unpleasant, and the air was biting enough to make some of the sweepswingers who went out in regulation rowing clothes wish they had kept their sweaters on.

The boat was made up as follows: Bow, oberts; No. 2, Kintx; No. 3, Powell; No. 4, Foster; No. 5, Farnsworth; No. 6, Thrall; No. 7, Dawson; stroke, Mueller; coxswain, Jenkins. oberts and Farnsworth are among the more promising material for this year's junior crew, and will be out every day with the rest of the juniors, who will start training this week.

Brooklanders Defeat Swarthmore in Eleventh

HUSTLING ON FIELD Catholic University has opened its dis mond season with a victory, though it took eleven innings for the Brooklanders to hang the tin-can sign on Swarthnore, 9 to 8. Trayers twiffed the first five frames for C. U., and allowed but one hit. He was in superb shape, but when Johnson went in without being suitably warmed up, the trouble started. Before the sixth inning had ended Swarthmore had scored eight runs and was leading, 8 to 6. After that, though, Johnson was invincible. The score:

chools, in order to represent schools in any form of athletics, conform to a scholarship standard higher than any known in other cities. Principal Emory C. Wilson, of the Central High School, is of the opinion that the code of scholarship standing here is ensiderably higher than that of other cities, and points to the fact that the principals' association so fixed the rules as to make them ironclad and in every way above reproach.

It has often been pointed out that the standard here is a bit too high, but in the opinion of the framers of the rules this very fact has eliminated much of the slipehod method and carelessness that obtained before the association agreed to the changes.

This very fact of a high standard of scholarship for athletes often results in barring some good players from the
